1. Overview

Advanced Deckhand – Fishing (ADH-F) certificate of proficiency

This guideline is for new applicants for the certificate of proficiency for Advanced Deckhand – Fishing (ADH-F). It does not cover recognition of an equivalent certificate obtained outside New Zealand.

The information in this guideline covers training, sea service and other requirements for the certificate, how to apply and pay for your certificate, and where to find more information.

For more information about the requirements for recognition and renewal (revalidation) of certificates, refer to the Maritime New Zealand (MNZ) website:

maritimenz.govt.nz/seafarers

The ADH-F certificate is issued under Resolution 4 of the International Convention on the Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Fishing Vessel Personnel (STCW-F).

With this certificate, you can perform the functions and duties of deckhand on fishing vessels in any operating area.

Disclaimer:

These guidelines provide information and explanations about the requirements set out in the maritime rules, but are not a substitute for the rules themselves, which are the law. These guidelines refer to provisions in the Maritime Rules Part 32, Seafarer Certification. The Director of Maritime New Zealand (MNZ) will grant a certificate only when satisfied that all requirements have been met. In this guideline, any references to 'we' or Maritime New Zealand (MNZ) relating to a decision about the issue or renewal of any seafarer certificate are references to the Director or a person acting under the Director's delegated authority.

2. Requirements

Before you spend time doing sea service and training, we recommend you check that you can meet the medical fitness and eyesight standards (including for colour vision), and that you understand the fit and proper person requirements.

To get this certificate, you need to prove that you meet all of the requirements. In summary, you need to:

- be at least 16 years old, medically fit and have good eyesight
- be a fit and proper person
- prove you have met the minimum sea service requirements
- complete an approved training record book
- have the required ancillary certificates
- complete and pass an approved training course
- pass MNZ's final exam.

Each of these requirements and how to prove that you meet them is explained below.

You must also have English conversation, reading and writing skills appropriate to the responsibilities and functions for the level of your certificate, so that you can satisfactorily complete training, pass examinations and discharge your duties.

2.1 Prior certification and qualifications

None required, but you must be at least 16 years old.

2. Requirements (continued)

2.2 Sea service

Sea service requirements

Your sea service must be relevant and appropriate to the requirements set out in the maritime rules. In practice, this will require you to:

- complete at least six months' sea service in a deck capacity aboard fishing vessels operating beyond enclosed water limits
- complete an approved training record book while on board.

All of your sea service must have been completed in the 10 years immediately before you apply for the certificate.

Proving your sea service

You are responsible for making sure your sea service is documented and verified by your ship's master or company.

You can use the summary of sea service form on MNZ's website to help keep track of your sea service. (This form is not required for your certificate application.)

To support your sea service, you must provide at least one of the following documents for each vessel you have served on:

- certificate of sea service (available on MNZ's website)
- completed seafarer's record book
- discharge certificate or discharge book (ensuring that any section on watchkeeping is appropriately signed off).

The documents you provide must contain all of the following details for each vessel you have served on:

- your employer's name and contact details
- the name, overall length and type of vessel (for example, passenger, non-passenger, fishing)
- the area of operation
- the dates you were employed and the sea time completed between those dates
- your duties.

Any statutory declarations you have made are not acceptable as proof of your sea service.

2. Requirements (continued)

Calculating sea service for voyages

Relevant qualifying sea service is expected to be on voyages of 24 hours or more, calculated as follows:

- from the sign-on date of starting work on the ship to the sign-off date of discharge (both dates are inclusive)
- by counting each whole calendar month during this period as one month
- for multiple voyages, by adding together extra days that do not fall within a calendar month, with each addition of 30 days to be calculated as one month.

Extended time in port is generally not counted as sea service, and nor is time on leave.

Note:

Voyage means a voyage between a port or place of departure and a ship's final port or place of arrival. It includes any period of 24 hours (or more) where you are signed on or employed on the vessel and you remain on board.

For example: If your service record shows your sign-on date as 3 March and sign-off date as 14 April, your sea service would be calculated as one month (3 March to 2 April) and 12 days (from 3 to 14 April inclusive).

For more information about calculating your sea service, refer to the MNZ website:

maritimenz.govt.nz/seafarers

Sea service pre-assessment

If you are unsure about whether you have met the sea service requirements, you can ask us to assess your sea service time before you make your full application. To have your sea service pre-assessed, you need to:

- apply for pre-assessment using MNZ's pre-assessment form
- send us the documents we need (see Proving your sea service above) in order to check your sea service.

Note:

If you are pre-assessed and have the required sea service for the ADH-F certificate, add your pre-assessment reference number to your seafarer certificate application form.

Training record book

While on board carrying out your sea service, you must complete an evidence-based ADH-F training record book, which you can download from the MNZ website. You may use another training record book developed by a training provider, provided that the book has been approved by the Director of MNZ.

The training record book is designed to help you obtain practical skills and competencies for the ADH-F certificate in a workplace environment. This training will complement the shore-based training that you must undertake before sitting the final examination.

Your training record book will be assessed by your training provider.

You must provide the original of your training record book to an MNZ-approved Maritime Examiner before you take your final exam.

Your training record book needs to:

- be the original, not a copy
- be completed while carrying out your sea service
- have all relevant records completed
- have all relevant project work completed and signed off by the ship's master or a qualified certificated officer, as indicated in the book.

Keep your training record book in a safe place. We also recommend you make a copy of the completed sections and the associated evidence, storing these in a safe place too – but separately from your training record book.

2. Requirements (continued)

2.3 Training and experience

Training

You must attend and pass training that is approved by the Director of MNZ to achieve all of the required competencies for this certificate, as specified in the Annex to Resolution 4 of the STCW-F Convention.

The approved training for ADH-F is the New Zealand Certificate in Fishing Vessel Crewing (Level 3) – 75 credits.

For more information about approved training providers and the ADH-F competency framework, refer to the MNZ website:

maritimenz.govt.nz/seafarers

Final examination

You must pass a final exam to show you have met the standards of competency specified in the Annex to Resolution 4 of the STCW-F Convention.

The final examination is currently an oral examination by an MNZ-approved Maritime Examiner, which is usually arranged by your training provider.

Your results will be sent to MNZ.

Refer to the MNZ website for more information:

maritimenz.govt.nz/seafarers

2. Requirements (continued)

Ancillary certificates

You must provide copies of the ancillary certificates you gained as part of your ADH-F training. Your training provider will issue you with a certificate for each of these courses to confirm you have demonstrated proficiency in the required skills.

If you already have an ancillary certificate that demonstrates proficiency in the areas listed below and at the required level, you may use it – as long as the specific requirements are met when we issue your ADH-F certificate.

Document(s) you must provide	Ancillary certificate requirements
STCW-F basic training	STCW-F basic training that complies with STCW-F chapter III regulation 1 and covers basic personal survival techniques, fire prevention and fire fighting, elementary first aid, prevention of marine pollution and prevention of shipboard accidents Alternatively, we will accept an STCW certificate of proficiency in basic training (which complies with STCW A-VI/1 paragraph 2) as meeting these requirements.

Your ancillary certificate must:

- conform to the STCW or STCW-F regulations and have the appropriate regulation reference number
- be from a training provider approved under the New Zealand Education Act or by MNZ, or from a training provider in a country where the Director has determined that ancillary training is STCW-compliant. (Refer to the recognition guidelines on MNZ’s website for information about recognition of ancillary certificates obtained outside New Zealand.)
- be seen by us before we can issue your ADH-F certificate.

Although not an STCW or STCW-F requirement, we encourage you to maintain the currency of your first aid certificate, in accordance with the requirements of the issuing organisation (which usually require refresher training every two years).

We encourage you to take steps to maintain currency of all of your ancillary competencies and to maintain accurate records. STCW-F is referred to in the maritime rules relating to fishing certificates as a suitable international standard. If you wish to maintain your certificate to this standard, you should note that in the future STCW-F may introduce similar currency requirements for ancillary proficiencies as are now required by STCW.

For more information about ancillary certificate requirements, including the information you need to provide to demonstrate currency if you already hold an ancillary certificate, refer to the ancillary guidelines on the MNZ website:

maritimenz.govt.nz/seafarers
