1. Overview

Skipper Restricted Limits (SRL) certificate of competency

This guideline is for new applicants for the Skipper Restricted Limits (SRL) certificate of competency. It does not cover recognition of an equivalent certificate obtained outside New Zealand.

The information in this guideline covers sea service, training and other requirements for the certificate, how to apply and pay for your certificate, and where to find more information.

Once you have your SRL certificate, it is valid for five years. To continue using your certificate you will need to renew it before the expiry date. For more details about the requirements for renewals (revalidation), refer to the Maritime New Zealand (Maritime NZ) website.

maritimenz.govt.nz/seafarers

The SRL certificate is an entry-level command certificate with engineering components. It is issued under Subpart B of Maritime Rules Part 32 – National Certificates.

With SRL you can perform a skipper's (master's) functions and duties on:

- passenger and non-passenger ships less than 12 metres length overall, carrying up to 19 passengers within restricted limits
- fishing vessels less than 12 metres length overall, in enclosed, inshore and inshore fishing limits.

Refer to the Advisory Circular for Part 20: Operating Limits for more information about operational limits for vessels.

maritimenz.govt.nz/rules

Note: Sea service on a pleasure craft, while in the capacity of skipper only, can be counted towards the SRL.

From SRL, you can obtain endorsements that enable you to command larger ships, carry more passengers and/or operate in specific areas. Refer to the guidelines for endorsements on Maritime NZ's website.

Disclaimer

These guidelines provide information and explanations about the requirements set out in the maritime rules, but are not a substitute for the rules themselves, which are the law. These guidelines refer to provisions in the Maritime Rules Part 32, Seafarer Certification. The Director of Maritime New Zealand will grant a certificate only when satisfied that all requirements have been met.

In this guideline, any references to 'we' or Maritime New Zealand relating to a decision about the issue or renewal of any seafarer certificate are references to the Director or a person acting under the Director's delegated authority.

2. Requirements

Before you spend time doing sea service and training, we recommend you check that you can meet the medical fitness and eyesight standards (including for colour vision), and that you understand the fit and proper person requirements.

A summary of the requirements for this certificate is provided below. You need to meet all of these requirements to get your SRL certificate.

- prove that you meet the minimum sea service requirements
- complete and pass the approved qualification for SRL
- have current certificates for the required ancillary proficiencies
- pass Maritime NZ's final exam
- prove that you are a fit and proper person
- be medically fit and have good eyesight
- be at least 18 years old.

Each of these requirements and how to prove that you meet them is explained in the following pages.

2. Requirements (continued)

2.1 Prior certification and qualifications

No prior certification or qualifications are required for this certificate of competency.

2.2 Sea service

Your sea service must be relevant and appropriate to the requirements set out in the maritime rules.

In practice, this means that you must complete your sea service on a powered ship of any kind.

You can gain your sea service on a pleasure craft, but only if you act in the capacity of skipper. If your sea service is obtained in this way, you must complete your service record in the training record book (TRB) and must also complete a statutory declaration stating that the service recorded is a true and accurate record of your sea service.

Sea service requirements

The sea service requirement is a minimum of 200 hours.

All of your sea service must be completed in the 10 years immediately before your certificate is issued.

Calculating sea service for voyages of 24 hours or more

Relevant qualifying sea service is expected to be on voyages of 24 hours or more, calculated as follows:

- from the sign-on date of starting work on the ship to the sign-off date of discharge (both dates are inclusive)
- by counting each whole calendar month during this period as one month
- by adding together days that do not fall within a calendar month, with each addition of 30 days calculated as one month.

Extended time in port is generally not counted as sea service, and nor is time on leave.

Note

Voyage means a voyage between a port or place of departure and a ship's final port or place of arrival. It includes any period of 24 hours (or more) where you are signed on or employed on the vessel and you remain on board.

For example: If your service record shows your sign-on date as 3 March and sign-off date as 14 April, your sea service would be calculated as one month (3 March to 2 April) and 12 days (from 3 to 14 April inclusive).

2. Requirements (continued)

Calculating sea service for voyages of less than 24 hours

Sea service on voyages of less than 24 hours is calculated by counting the number of months made up of days, as follows:

- by counting each period of eight (or more) hours worked within each period of 24 hours as one day's service
- by counting periods of more than eight hours at a rate of more than one day (may be expressed in decimal points) at the Director's discretion, if the Director is satisfied that there are suitable policies and processes in place to manage fatigue
- by counting each additional 20 days (or more) in one month as one month's sea service.

In cases where sea service is accrued and recorded in hours (for example, day work):

- each additional 160 hours (or more) in one month counts as one month's sea service
- where insufficient hours are accrued in a period of 30 days, additional hours may be accrued until 160 hours have been reached. This can then be counted as one month's sea service.

You cannot claim for more days of sea service than you actually served. Extended time in port is generally not counted as sea service, and nor is time on leave.

For more information about calculating your sea service, refer to the MNZ website:

maritimenz.govt.nz/seafarers

Sea service pre-assessment

If you are unsure about whether you have met the sea service requirements, you can ask us to assess your sea service time before you make your full application.

To have your sea service pre-assessed, you need to:

- apply for pre-assessment using MNZ's pre-assessment form
- send us the documents we need (see Proving your sea service above) in order to check your sea time.

Note

If you are pre-assessed and have the required sea service for the SRL certificate, add your pre-assessment reference number to your seafarer certificate application form.

2. Requirements (continued)

Proving your sea service

You are responsible for making sure your sea service is documented and verified by your ship's master or company.

To prove your sea service, you must provide at least one of the following documents for each vessel you have served on:

- certificate of sea service or record of employment (available on Maritime NZ's website)
- completed seafarer's record book
- copy of the record of sea service (Table 1) from the training record book (TRB)
- discharge certificate or discharge book (ensuring that any section on watchkeeping is appropriately signed off)
- a letter from your employer.

The documents you provide must contain all of the following details for each vessel you have served on:

- your employer's name and contact details
- the name, overall length and type of vessel (for example, passenger, non-passenger, fishing)
- the area of operation
- the dates you were employed and the sea time completed between those dates
- your duties and the capacities you served in.

Any statutory declarations you have made are generally not acceptable as proof of your sea service. However, if your sea service is on recreational vessels you will need to provide a statutory declaration. The Director will consider other sea service provided on a statutory declaration in exceptional circumstances.

For service on a commercial ship or warship, you are responsible for recording your hours of sea service in your training record book (TRB) and having this verified by your skipper. Refer to the record of sea service section (Table 1) in the TRB.

You must record your actual hours at sea. Note that sea service of more than eight hours in any 24-hour period is only counted as eight hours of sea service. Accordingly, you will need to complete a minimum 25 days of sea service (25 days at eight hours per day = 200 hours).

Training record book

While on board carrying out your sea service, you must complete an evidence-based training record book (TRB), which you can download from the Maritime NZ website. You must complete the TRB within the five years preceding the date of your application for an SRL certificate.

You may complete your sea service on a combination of commercial vessels and/or warships, and as the skipper on pleasure craft.

If you complete any of your TRB while acting as skipper on a pleasure craft, demonstration of competency may be required by the training provider.

If you complete all of the TRB on board a commercial ship, your TRB must be signed by the skipper or another certificated crew member.

Keep your TRB in a safe place. We also recommend that you make a copy of the completed sections and associated evidence, and also store these in a safe place – but separately from your TRB.

About the on-board training record book

The TRB is designed to help you obtain practical skills and competencies for the SRL certificate in a workplace environment. This training will complement the shore-based training that you must undertake before sitting the Maritime NZ-approved final examination.

All of the competencies required for SRL can be gained through a combination of the TRB activities and attending an approved SRL training course. The TRB activities can be completed while serving aboard a commercial vessel, warship or as skipper on a pleasure craft.

The TRB book should be completed before starting a block training course, and may be completed before or during a modular training course such as a unit standard undertaken over a period of time. Information about approved training providers for SRL courses is available on the Maritime NZ website.

The completed TRB and accompanying evidence will be made available to training providers and the approved Maritime NZ examiner for the final examination which you must pass before Maritime NZ can issue your SRL certificate of competency.

Endorsements for the SRL certificate

You may apply for the following endorsements at the same time as you apply for your SRL certificate:

Passenger endorsement

You need to complete all requirements for SRL and

- complete six months of sea service in a deck capacity on a commercial passenger ship, and
- complete an approved training course (such as the passenger endorsement course, crowd management training, safety training for personnel providing direct services to passengers; or crisis management and human behaviour training),

Endorsed to 24 metres

You need to complete all requirements for SRL and complete six months of sea service in a deck capacity on a commercial ship of 12 metres in length or more.

2. Requirements (continued)
